Asian Journal of Peacebuilding (AJP) is a semiannual peer-reviewed journal launched by the Institute for Peace and Unification Studies (IPUS) at Seoul National University. It publishes original research on the topics of violence, conflict, and peacebuilding around the world. The aim of AJP is twofold: first, to promote innovative research on issues related to peacebuilding in Asia, a region where national divisions, transitions, and developments are intertwined with new forms of threat, violence, and destruction. Second, it aims to disseminate peace studies conducted both in the traditional disciplines of social sciences and humanities, as well as in interdisciplinary fields at the interface of religion, culture, ecology, and gender studies.

AJP welcomes papers written by scholars around the world, both within and outside the Asian region. Exemplary topics that AJP focuses on include but are not limited to: reconciliation in divided societies (or nations); migrants and refugees; weapons of mass destruction (WMD) developments; development and ecological destruction; historical and territorial disputes; peacemaking or mediation in intrastate conflicts; violence and transitional justice; anti-nuclear weapons (or anti-nuclear power) movements; gender issues at conflict zones; democratic transition and human rights; post-conflict institutionalization; and humanitarian assistance and protection.

The contents of the Journal are available or abstracted at EBSCOhost™ Political Science, EBSCOhost™ Academic Search Ultimate, ProQuest Political Science, ProQuest Social Science, Sociological Abstracts, Worldwide Political Science Abstracts, and International Political Science Abstracts.

Submission Guidelines

All papers are subject to anonymous peer review. The reviewers are selected based on their expertise in the area of the submitted paper, and they will evaluate submitted papers on the basis of creativity, quality of scholarship, and contribution to the field of research. Authors are kindly requested to submit manuscripts in the following manner:

1. Basic Requirements

The manuscript is the author's own original work, and does not duplicate any other previously published work, including the author's own previously published work.

The manuscript has been submitted only to Asian Journal of Peacebuilding; it is not under consideration or peer review or accepted for publication or in press or published elsewhere.

A separate cover page should be sent with the author's short biography (3-4 sentences: affiliation, rank title, publications, email address, etc.) should be submitted.

Submission should be made via e-mail to: peacejournal@snu.ac.kr

2. Manuscript Preparation

The length of a research article should be between 6,000 and 10,000 words, including references.

A research note should be no longer than 6,000 words in length, including references, notes and abstract.

A review essay should be between 3,000 and 4,000 words.

A response should be between 3,000 and 4,000 words.

Research articles and research notes must include an abstract of less than 125 words and 5 to 6 keywords.

All manuscripts should be submitted in Microsoft Word format.

All pages should be double-spaced, Times New Roman font point 12 (including references) and left justified.

Authors should pay particular attention to the accuracy and correct presentation of references and citations. In-text references should be cited by giving the author's name, year of publication and specific page numbers after a direct quotation (Smith 1999, 28-29). A list of works cited must be inserted at the end of the paper. References should be single-spaced but double-spaced between citations and arranged alphabetically by author's family name, and chronologically for each author. When referring more than once to the same author published the same year, identify each citation in the text as follows; (Smith 2012a; 2012b). When there are more than three authors, cite in the text as (Smith et al. 1999), but list all the authors in the reference list.
